And that book tells of a way to help. Tells of a way so certain that I, an a physician, offer that help on trial. The book tells how for 30 years in hospitals and at bedsides I searched for a way to cure deep-scated and difficult disease. It tells how i perfected my prescription—Dr. Shoop's Restorative. How by scientife experiment I traced out the causes that bring on chronic disease.

I found invariably that where there was a weakness, the lastic nerves were weak. Where there was a lack of vitality that the vital neves lacked power, where weak organs were found, I always found weak neves. Not the nerves commonly thought of, but the vital organs' nerves, the inside—the invisible nerves.

This was a revelation. Then my real success began.

Then I combined ingredients that would strengthen, that would vitalize these nerves. That prescription I called a retorative. It is known the world over now as Dr. Shoop's Restorative. After that I did not fail to cure one case in each hundred. In the entremely difficult cases my failures for five years were one in each forty treated. I found cancer incurable. Cancer is for surgery, not medicine.

Then how to get this prescription to sick ones everywhere was soy thought. I must announce it in the public press. But, thought I, will they realt that for my discovery—the real power of Dr. Shoop's Restorative? Then a way came to me—like an inappration. 'I will offer it to the sick on trial. Politics Still Much Muddled

The democratic city convention is to be held tomorrow, but the democratic delegates, nearly all of whom have been selected at precinct caucuses, are all at sea as to whom they will nominate for mayor. The efforts of the leaders have been confined to trying to induce former Mayor Hartenbower to be a candidate for the place. This evening a letter was received from him in which he positively declines. A large element in the party favors the indorsement of the independent candidacy of John MacVicar, the defeated republican candidate, who is now well in the race for the election and will run no matter what the democrats do.
